PEARL HARBOR FETE

will take some action with regard to a tariff protection for Hawaiian coffee. The trustees placed themselves on record as favoring the postal savings bank as recommended by the Postmaster General. In particular did they approve of such bank for the islands, giving it as their opinion, in a carefully-prepared report, that a system of postal banks would promote thrift and be to the general advantage and welfare of the inhabitants.

The suggestion that a delegate from Honolulu Harbor be sent to attend the national convention of the American Association of Masters, Mates and Pilots, in Washington during next January, met with general approval.

Capt. Piltz and Will Young were present on behalf of the Harbor to explain the position of that organization. The trustees asked a few questions as to the duties of a delegate to the convention, the probable expenses, and the sentiments of Prince Kuhio in the matter, and then voted to favor the sending of a representative.

The question of raising money for the expenses of the representative will be considered at once and the man to send will be selected.

The resignation of W. Protenhauer as a trustee of the Chamber of Commerce was received and accepted. J. F. Hackfeld was nominated to succeed him and unanimously elected.

The necessity for tariff protection on certain of the products of the islands was considered at length by the trustees. Attention was called to the fact that, though sugar is well looked after, and the pineapple growers have taken steps to safeguard their interests, there are many industries to which little or no attention is being paid.

The meeting was called to order. The meeting was called to order by J. P. Cooke in the chair. A number of communications were read. Trustee Protenhauer's resignation was acted upon and his successor elected and then the meeting adjourned.

Immediately after the adjournment of the meeting the trustees were called together in a special meeting.
